

My Brother's Job

My brother is a fireman. He puts out fires, saves people in danger and drives a fire truck.

He is brave because he saves people in danger. He has teamwork skills because he needs to work well with others. Moreover, he is cautious because he needs to make important decisions.

I think being a fireman is dangerous because they could die at any time. It is meaningful because they can save people who are dying. It is also stressful because if the person they try to rescue dies, they may be scolded or feel guilty.

I admire my brother because he is a brave fireman.
